

TRADE COMMISSION PLAN NOT LEGAL

VAN HISE APPEARS BEFORE COMMITTEE AT WASHINGTON.

NEW BILL IS PROPOSED

Probable That It Will Be Discovered Why Hens Do Not Lay Two Eggs.

Washington, Feb. 13.—While Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, was today testifying before the house commerce committee, Representative Stevens of Minnesota, ranking republican of the committee, declared the administration-Clayton bill for an interstate trade commission was unconstitutional in many respects. No member of the committee defended the bill, which was framed by Chairman Clayton and others after conferences with President Wilson. The discussion which followed seemed to indicate that a new bill might be drawn.

Dr. Van Hise, saying the courts had been too slow in treating industrial problems, proposed that a commission should have power to act upon its own initiative without waiting for complaint or litigation, and that its findings of fact should be accepted as final with certain stipulations.

Predictions of the heretofore revolution the world has ever known. If the British government approves the Hindu exclusion policies of its colonies, we made today before the house immigration committee by Dr. Van Hise, a professor in the university of Iowa, during an argument in which he contended that Hindoos were an Aryan people entitled to naturalization.

He urged that if the Hindoos were to be excluded here a "gentleman's agreement" be made between the United States and the British Indian government to restrict the immigration.

Senior Wisconsin Senator Declares Public Has Been Misled in Railroad Agitation.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 13.—Senator La Follette today announced his determined opposition to the railroad bill allowed to increase their interstate freight rates 5 per cent. He says that the public is being misled on these statements, that the schedules which the railroads have prepared provide for an increase of from three to fifty per cent that will place an added burden upon the public of $1,000,000 a year.

"The railroads base their demand for higher rates upon alleged increases in the taxes which they have been required to pay in the several states, upon the advances made in wages to employees and upon a contention that their net income has diminished," says Senator La Follette.

TEN THOUSAND MARK IS PASSED AT NOON

DIRECTORS OF THE PARK ASSOCIATION MUCH ENCOURAGED.

FAIR IS NOW ASSURED

Expect Now That the Entire Sum Needed Will Be Subscribed by Saturday Night.

Janesville is to have a fair in the coming August. This is now an assured fact. The interest shown and the willingness of the business men to subscribe liberally to the stock is most gratifying to the directors of the Park Association, who have undertaken to raise the funds and manage the affair.

"I tell you I never saw so much interest displayed in anything in my life before," said John C. Nichols, president of the Park Association, this noon. "Why, almost every one we have approached on the subject was willing to subscribe a more stock, and the few that asked us to wait until later did so for very good reasons. I really do not think we have had one real turn down yet."

"We plan to give a fair this coming August, and we set a mark for future fairs and eclipse anything ever attempted in this part of the country before. Of course we have made no permanent decision, but the coming August race meet, the date for which has not yet been set, and this indicates that the speed part of the program will be well taken care of. We need new barns and either an addition to the present grand stand or a new one, utilizing the old material to make it uniform. Now that the money is raised we can go ahead and make definite plans."

John Souleman, vice president of the association, and one of the most active members of the committee said: "It is a success. I tell you that Janesville will be proud of itself when the gates open for the fair. We need several thousand dollars more than is now subscribed, but I think we will easily raise that."

Harry Nowlan, another active member of the committee, also very enthusiastic over the prospects. "It means that Janesville will have a fair," he said. "It also means that the citizens have demonstrated they want it and mean to have it. It will be a good one."

Frank P. Crook, who has been an active solicitor, said: "I never saw such enthusiasm shown anywhere. We had a number of contributions pledged to date, and I trust can raise the rest of the money needed by Saturday night. It will be a big thing for Janesville."

Dr. A. Munn and Edward Amerpoth, the other two directors, also expressed themselves as much gratified with the results of the two days' canvass. It means the success of the undertaking and the success of the directors as being the men to carry it out, is most gratifying. The committee expect to finish their work by tomorrow evening.

QUEENS WOULD BE ABLE TO EARN GOOD WAGES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, Feb. 13.—Almost any of the Queens of Europe, if they should be deprived of their thrones and fortunes, could earn a comfortable livelihood by means of their own personal talents.

Queen Mary of England is a clever seamstress, and she sings and paints quite creditably. Queen Victoria Augusta of Germany is skilled in the use of the camera and produces a special kind of art-photograph. Queen Wilhelmina of Holland paints miniatures and porcelain. Queen Maud of Norway is a playwright. This makes the pseudonym of "Graham Irving." She is also a competent book-binder, dress-maker and painter.

Queen Elizabeth of Belgium possesses Queen Elizabeth of Romania possesses a doctor's diploma of the University of Leipzig. Besides she plays the piano and violin exceedingly well. Or, her skill as a motorist would easily qualify her to take a taxicab. "Carmen Sylva" (Queen Elizabeth of Rumania) is a world famous poetess and novelist. Queen Helena of Italy could readily earn $500 a week on the vaudeville stage as an expert in the use of the pseudonym of "Graham Irving." She is also an archaeologist.

URGES GOOD ROADS FOR SAVING MONEY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Columbus, O., Feb. 13.—Good roads throughout the country would mean the saving of enough money each year to build 15 Panama Canals. This was the statement today of State Highway Commissioner James R. Marker in discussing his plans for a publicity campaign in connection with the department's good roads movement.

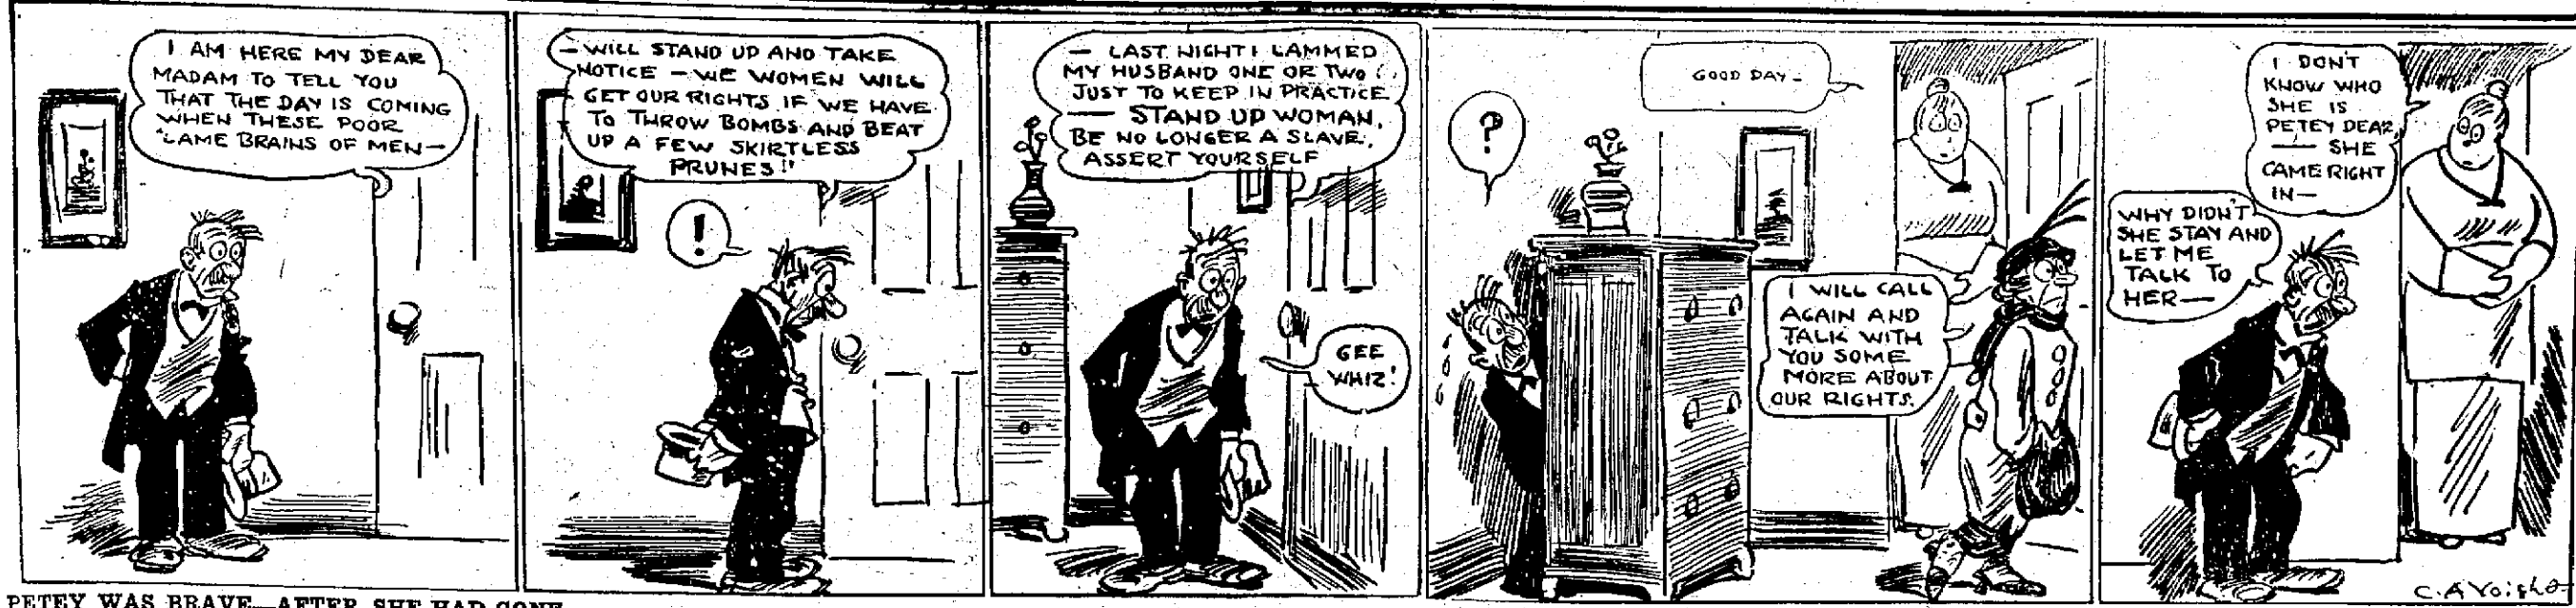

The cost of hauling one ton, one mile on a good road by horse-drawn wagons is eight cents, said Marker. "The average cost in the United States is 23 cents. Five billion tons of freight are hauled on the poor roads. The average haul is ten miles. This makes the traffic amount to 50 billion ton-miles. At 23 cents a ton-mile the annual cost is $11,000,000,000. At 8 cents a ton-mile, the good-road cost, the saving would be $7,500,000,000."

"Following Father's Footsteps" is the song hit of the little skit that is being enacted by the Fitzsimmons home of late. Pa Fitzsimmons is assiduously training up his son, Bob, Jr., in the way he should go and the old man doesn't mind telling one and all that when he was put his boy through the sprouts there will be a new heavyweight champ in these U. S. And those who have seen Fitz Jr. step around are just about willing to believe that the old man wots whereof he speaks. Whether or not the boy inherits his old man's freckles he at least has his senior's punch.

"That son of mine," said Fitz recently, and with some little pride, "is a natural born fighter. When I say that there are no others in the same class with him it must not all be attributed to paternal pride. I believe that he in his present shape could lick me when I was in my prime and if we are to believe my newspaper clips that would be quite an achievement." Fitz insists that he isn't going to bring his boy out for a year or so yet, but that when he does he will make us all sit up and gasp.

Now that they are able to teach him English, Miguel Angelo Gonzalez, the Cuban catcher, will probably make good in the big show. He was signed with Boston in 1912, but Stallings had to discharge him because he couldn't talk. King's tongue. Last season Miguel played with the Long Branch club and set the league afire, winning most of the games for Long Branch and sewing up the New York-New Jersey flag. He has recently been signed with the Cincinnati Reds and Marsans the Cuban City outfielder declares that he will have Gonzales talking like a native by the end of the training trip. Gonzales is a husky rascal, a mighty clever catcher and has a whip like a shot gun. He's strong at the bat and in fact in every department and as soon as he fattens up his speak in English average he will be sure to get away.

Kid Williams, the Baltimore bantam, says he won't fight Johnny Coulton at all unless they agree to points out Williams, if he should beat Coulton in ten rounds Coulton would wait till he sorted a long beard before he would agree to fight Williams in twenty rounds. And then he'd probably back out. Kid Williams' manager declares that he is beginning to weary of Coulton's continued evasions of Williams' challenges. Illness and sickness is all right says Harris, but if he isn't going to be able to fight why doesn't he retire undefeated and turn his title over to the best claimant. One or the other will have to be done shortly because this young Williams stirring up the dust in bantam circles.

BOTH TEAMS READY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP CONFLICT TONIGHT

Janesville and Madison High School Basketball Fives Engage in Bitter Struggle at Eight O'clock.

At eight o'clock tonight in the local high school gymnasium, the Janesville and Madison high school basketball quintets will battle in the most important contest of the year, the winners to be recognized champions of southern Wisconsin. The defeated team will not, however, be eliminated from the race for two teams go to Appleton from the southern section, thus saving the losing five from entire exclusion, and giving them another chance to fight for the stage flag.

Captain Hemming fears the Madison five to a certain extent, but believes his team will be the winners, only at the final moment. He has the idea that behind him is a bunch of scrappy players, who will fight for every inch, and not give up as Beloit did against Madison a few weeks ago at Beloit. It is thought that had Beloit offered any kind of opposition and resistance against the Capital City five, that the score might have been closer, and even resulting in a victory for Beloit.

Stewart's nose is considerably better, and may allow him to enter the game tonight if needed. Stickney will start the game at right forward. Stewart on the left end. Stewart enters the conflict, he will be obliged to wear a noseguard to warrant safety to himself. Every student in the school gave the affirmative sign today when asked if they were going to the game tonight. The contest is going to be close from start to finish. Madison has the honor of holding the heavy and aggressive La Crosse five to a 20 to 18 score last Saturday night. If the locals win tonight they will be on a par with La Crosse, who have so far this season been recognized as the best high school quintet in Wisconsin, without a doubt.

The most clever work on the part of Janesville tonight is expected from Dalton, who will have the hardest Madison player to handle. Benway is his name and he is some speed marvel on the floor. Dalton will give Stewart a mercurial fight, it is thought, even for the fact that he is playing guard. In fact, Dalton has been more successful at shooting baskets from guard than at forward. Benway, it is said, is bound to score no less than four or five baskets during every game in which he plays. Well, it is up to Janesville to hold Benway and perhaps the victory will then come easier.

game will start promptly to allow the big contest to be called at eight o'clock. The Madison players will return to the Capital City tonight, and Coach Curtis wishes to allow them plenty of time to recuperate after the title fight has been staged.

At four o'clock this afternoon, the local high school affirmative debating team clashed with the Freeport negative team in what was predicted would result in a good stiff fight in the line of argument. The local trio, Schoof, George Spohn and Karl Frick, the three local talkers, opened the discussion on the question, Resolved, the literary test is the desirable method in further restricting foreign immigration into the United States. The members of the Freeport trio were, C. Daniels, F. Zartman and B. Langstein.

Debate Saturday. Tomorrow night the local negative debating trio will meet the Madison high school affirmative team in the latter's school auditorium. The contest will be called promptly at seven-thirty. Madison have but two debating teams in the history of their institution, and tomorrow night they expect to have a strong trio at hand to oppose the local speakers. Their team it is reported, have been working diligently on the question for the past two months and have it pretty well thrashed out. The local trio is composed of Allen Dearborn, leader and third speaker, Russell Smiley, first speaker, and Stanley Horwood, second speaker.

The Madison trio is composed of Howard Eaton, Ellis Potter and Otto Myrland.

SIGN CHICAGO PUG FOR LEADING BOUT

Promoters of Bower City Boxing Club Signing Boxers for Bout on Twenty-Sixth of Month.

Promoters of the Bower City Boxing Club are receiving applications from hundreds of boxers in this section of the country for signing for the club's first bout on the twenty-sixth of this month, and the directors have refused to sign the pugs as yet, aiming to pick the best men possible for the first exhibition. The only boxer that the local men have signed and obtained his guarantee is Willie Schaffer of Chicago, who it is expected will be pitted against a Milwaukee battler of note in the main bout. Schaffer is one of the cleverest boxers in this section of the country and has a long victory list to his credit. Being naturally a clever man in the scientific parts of the game, the directors are certain he will be a headliner for the exhibition. Schaffer appeared in the Beloit ring some time ago and outboxed his opponent by a wide margin, and has whipped many notable fighters in the middle west, and fought "Packer" McFarland, the Chicago stock yards' prize, a hot battle when Schaffer first started his ring career. The promoters have not signed the pug who is to oppose him, but it is reported when Schaffer crawls between the ropes on the twenty-sixth he will be greeted with a Milwaukee boxer who has a great reputation as a willing mixer and slugger, and the combination should result in a feature bout.

YORDY TO ORGANIZE BASKETBALL LEAGUE

Physical Director at Y. M. C. A. Will Start New Enthusiastic Move in His Various Classes.

Physical Director Frank Yordy of the local Y. M. C. A. will start next Monday night, organize a new basketball league, in his various classes and some boys will elect their team captains on next Monday night and the teams will be picked. These teams will play a series of games on every Friday night in the association gymnasium. The fact that there are many players to pick from, and that they have much ability, warrants from the very outset, the success of the league. The purpose is to arouse interest and get the members into the habit of attending the regular weekly classes. Mr. Yordy asks for a large attendance on Monday night and asks that they be on hand at seven-fifteen sharp.

Monday afternoon the high school class will meet at four-fifteen to discuss plans and elect captains for a similar league, the games of which are to be played on Saturday afternoons.

B Junior enthusiasts elected their captains this afternoon and will choose their respective teams the early part of next week.

Same as "Hot Air."

Inflated orators and sometimes statesmen are accused of bombast. In old England bombast was cotton-wool used for padding or stuffing doublets and other wearing apparel, hence the term as applied to "hot-air" orators. The term "hot air," however, is indigenous to the soil and is purely American.

AMUSEMENTS

"BOUGHT AND PAID FOR."

Next Thursday night at the Myers Theater William A. Brady's splendid production of the Broadhurst play, "Bought and Paid For," will fill an engagement here. It is especially attractive to women.

Virginia has been surfeited with luxury; her every wish has been gratified. Stafford has kept his word; she has grown to love him profoundly—but, despite the fact that he is equally attached to her, she is not happy. There are men who can drink a glass of wine without apparent evil results, but Stafford is not one of them. Wine is the key that lets loose the beast inside his brain, that transforms him from a courtly, dignified gentleman into a licentious, unrepentant man to be afraid of, a creature to flee from.

There have been numerous lapses on Stafford's part and they are growing in frequency and violence. In act two we are admitted to one of these scenes. It leaves nothing to the imagination; it is a chapter from the book of life, naked and unashamed. It is a tremendous scene, in which you watch the growing madness of the man and feel the mounting terror of the woman.

It is a wonderful scene, wonderfully played, but as unpleasant as peep into a padded cell—in fact, it is madman who breaks down the door of his wife's room and disappears into it, leaving you saturated with horror. The right to do as he will with his wife—that is the entire argument. "I bought and paid for you," he says, "and I'll do with my own as I please." The moment a man begins to talk about his legal rights to his wife he loses his moral rights, and the morning right is the only thing that makes for real matrimony.

Nothing so frank, so realistic, has ever been seen here; likewise, nothing so artistic and perfect in the way of a performance. The humor of the play—and there is a plenty and of a high order—is supplied by James Gilley and his wife, Fanny. Both are great character parts and finely played. It is staged and presented in a rare perfect manner and is of itself the most interesting play that will be seen here this season.

"Bought and Paid For" ran for over fifteen months at the Playhouse, New York; six months at the Princess Theater, Chicago; and over six months at the New Theater, London, England.

JOHN J. MCGRAW IN EDISON TALKING PICTURES

The durable and versatile "Muggsy" McGraw, just now piloting the joint world's tour of the Chicago White Sox and the Giants, lately completed a two act talking picture under Thomas A. Edison's direction. This will be a part of the big new series of talking pictures which Mr. Edison will offer again tonight at the Myers Theater, and will bid for popular honors with the rather pretentious operetta, "Olivette," and the big Rialto-skeller Cabaret featuring Seymour, Dempsey and Seymour.

"Muggsy" McGraw, who seems to be willing to essay anything once, and who as a rule does all things equally well, has, unlike his conqueror, Connie Mack, been wooed and won by the spell of the footlights. Last season he made a tour of the big vaudeville houses of the country in a baseball sketch in which he proved himself an actor and monologist of no mean caliber.

The present sketch which he has made for Mr. Edison is in two parts, showing a scene at the club house on the Polo Grounds in New York, and the latter part being played in the drawing room of a fashionable Fifth Avenue mansion. Much amusing dialogue and accounts of the funny incidents in McGraw's baseball career are given in the ball player-comedian's best vein.

THE CLASSICS. Johnnie—Who was Nero, Pop? Wasn't he the chap that was always cold? Pop—No, my son, I think that was zero.

APOLLO THEATRE. One of the best acts, from a musician's point of view, that has been here this season, is now on the bill at the Apollo Theatre. Galsano and Minnie, the harpist and the prima donna, are two artists. The lady has a beautiful soprano voice and the man fairly makes the harp sing. Max Rossi, the German comedian, keeps the audience in good humor from the time he comes on until he goes off at the last encore. Gerald and Griffin give a cabaret entertainment that is good, introducing comedy singing, pianology and dancing. Marie Lavelaire is a petite little miss with fascinating costume and rare little songs. She met with instant approval.

THE ALEBANIAN CRISIS.

European diplomats from the days of Charlemagne have been noted for the successful manner in which they settled disputes between nations, out-generaled their nearest neighbors, and overcame obstacles. The brightest men of the nation are to be found in the diplomatic corps. The sharpest brains of Europe are at the command of the various nations maneuvering to seek some political advantage. For years the Balkan peninsula has been the source of contention between the European powers. The Crimean war was fought, the Crescent waved supreme and then through the years that followed the diplomats, by wily moves, isolated this principality or that from the Turk, created new kingdoms, rejuvenated old, divided this parcel of land and increased that, making this part of Europe a veritable checkerboard. The play game of the wits of the various nations. But out of the chaos came the recent war. The Bulgars, descendants of the Hun who invaded Christendom in the early centuries, defied the power of the Holy Roman empire, allied themselves with their brethren the Servians, the Greeks and the Montenegrins, and drove the Crescent from Europe. Defeated the Turks on their own fighting ground, thwarted Russia in its endeavor to gain a passageway through the Dardanelles, cowed Austria and Hungary from gobbling up territory they had long had their eyes upon and then started fighting among themselves.

Just who gained the most from this war it is impossible to say as yet, for the end has not been written. The Bulgars annexed territory but also lost some to their neighbor, Roumania, who stood aloof during the grueling contest, and by clever strategic moves took over a populous country to suit their own convenience. Serbia gained eminence and Greece assured its position in the eastern end of the Mediterranean. Montenegro retired to its strongholds and the Powers took up the question of Albania and its government. Their final decision has been most ludicrous. They named the Prince of Wied as its first ruler and he is about to take possession of the throne. The northern tribes of this country, the Roman Catholic tribes, whose country is claimed by Serbia, wait to pay his respect armed to the teeth. They are under command of chieftains, each of whom has far better claims to the throne than has the prince. The Mohammedan belt in Central Albania is practically under the domination of Essad Pasha, the famous defender of Scutari, and they await the landing of the new prince with interest. In the south where Italy makes its claim, the Grecian population is in arms and demands the inclusion of Epirus within the kingdom of Greece.

Looking at it seriously there never has and never will be a united Albanian kingdom. There is a country called Albania, whose very confines were unknown to the Turk who owned it, and whose population consists of a collection of warring tribes, antagonistic in race, in language and in religion. This is the Albanian nation, to whose throne the Prince of Wied has been elected, in order that the susceptibilities of Austria and Italy may be respected by its not falling into the hands of the countries whose armies overran it when, a few months ago, it was taken from the Turks. Its soldiers have never been disciplined, and decline to be; its people have never paid taxes, and have no intention of doing so, and its merchandise has been mainly pillage carried off from the neighboring districts. This is the new state, the autonomy of which has been demanded by Austria and Italy, but whose vacant throne their nominee is in no hurry to occupy, and whose borders they dare not cross, for fear of coming to blows between themselves.

What the end of it all is to be, nobody seems to know, least of all the great powers. They have set up their throne and independent Albania, with the result that the freedom may be described in the word "chaos" and its independence measured by the length of the various chieftains' arms. It is now seriously proposed that the great powers, whom Austria and Italy have driven into this predicament, should proceed to administer the country, but even these powers appear to draw the line at this, and to take refuge in the unheroic policy of waiting upon the event.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT.

There is another wave of agitation in favor of the commission plan of city government among Wisconsin cities. Already there have been three elections in the result that Antigo has swung into line under the new order, while the cities of Kenosha and South Milwaukee have rejected it.

One other city, Fond du Lac, is now considering the proposition, and the decision will be made on March 23d. The result of these elections is of interest in Janesville, where the commission plan has been given a two years' trial. By surviving most creditably a recall agitation of great insistence and strength, by giving the citizens an economical and business-like administration, actually reducing the tax rate for the city within the two year period, by adding to the permanent improvements of the city in a large way, by improving the city's moral tone, by bettering physical and sanitary conditions, by improvements in the school system, notably the establishment of the continuation schools and the institution of public playgrounds, and in numerous other ways that could be mentioned, the commission plan has succeeded in this city.

At Oshkosh the commission plan was adopted at the same time. The Northwestern has the following to say regarding its success there: "And so it will be, for in the light of the experience of other cities which have turned to the commission plan there is really only one side to the argument, and that is in favor of the commission system. Oshkosh now has had two years of experience under commission rule, and it is safe to say that if the question were again put to a vote the commission would carry by a much larger majority than it did in the first place. Many of the original skeptics have been thoroughly converted to the merits of this new system, and nothing could induce them to again vote against it. Nor is this exceptional, for it tallies with the experience of many other places that have adopted the commission system, and in fact no place that ever tried it has gone back to the old plan of a mayor and ward aldermen."

HITS THE NAIL ON THE HEAD.

The Evening Wisconsin hits the nail on the head when it says that the issue before the voters of Wisconsin at the present time is that of anti-high taxes. Party tags will not count for much this year and it will be the men, not the party, who are nominated and their work will be cut for them from the time they pop their heads up to seek office. Many republicans and democrats have signed the call for Judge Karel as a candidate for governor on the democratic ticket. They have done so doubtless feeling that Karel is opposed to the high taxes and will make this his issue as he made the income tax two years ago. Perhaps he will, but it is still time to wait until he does before becoming unduly enthusiastic over his candidacy. However he is the only man thus far, unless it be Roethe, the republican, who has even intimated what his campaign issue will be. But to return to the Evening Wisconsin's ideas on the situation. They say editorially:

As everybody knows, the good old party name republican was put to a queer use two years ago when it was made to assist the candidacy of an avowed Bull Moose. There were politicians who condemned avowed republicans for bolting the candidate whose name was on the republican ticket for governor, but who themselves bolted the republican candidate for the presidency, a republican concerning whose allegiance to his party there was no shade of doubt.

"Surely it illustrates the humor of politics that men who call themselves republican and did not vote for Taft can presume to criticize the republicanism of those who did. But let bygones be bygones.

"The predominant present issue in this state, on which voters of various antecedents will unite is the taxation issue. They demand economy and lower taxes, and they will vote for the man whom they deem most likely to bring about these important reforms, whether he be a republican or a democrat."

BOOSTING JANESVILLE.

It is one of the worst sort of advertisements for any community when its citizens go out of their way to hand their home city criticism in public addresses. It belittles the men who do it and hurts the home community. Janesville is a good town to live in and a good town to boost. If every one put their shoulder to the wheel and boosted there would be far less opportunity to criticize. There is nothing that grows so quickly in magnitude as a slurring remark about an individual or a community. It increases with each repetition until it takes the magnitude of an overwhelming truth and even the person startling it would sometimes be surprised to recognize the foundation for the slander before it reaches the end. It grows like a snowball rolled down hill. Janesville has two organizations—the Commercial club and the Twenty-five Thousand club—both working for the best interests of the city. Both organizations have strong men as leaders and they work for the community and, namely, boosting Janesville. Every citizen ought to club with one of the two and play his part in making the city one of the best in southern Wisconsin. We have a good system of government, we have most excellent facilities for public convenience, we are in the center of one of the richest agricultural districts in the country and there is no reason why Janesville should not forge ahead. Anything that interests Janesville should interest Rock county and anything that interests any part of Rock county should interest Janesville. It is a poor game that does not work both ways, so everyone should forget past differences and work for the great good of the whole and boost Janesville.

THAT SENATORSHIP.

While there is apparently a lot of seeming indifference in the political situation in the state as a whole, still almost every voter is wondering what will happen at the September primaries and who will be the next United States senator from the Badger state. Few seem to realize that this year's election means really more than formerly, as this year every voter casts his ballot directly for the United States senator. It is not left to the state legislature to elect a senator; it is up to the people themselves. They are the final judges. This is one of the new wrinkles in the government and while it may be a trifle perplexing to follow out at first it will work out all right in the end and we will not have to have an other expensive senatorial investigation as to who got the money that was spent. Republicans, democrats, bull moosers or prohibitionists all have an equal chance at the polls; that is, if they nominate a good, strong man at the September primaries. With this in mind it will mean a red hot summer for the various candidates for any office they seek. McGovern is certain to run and it is probable that Isaac Stephenson will also be a candidate. Who the La Follette men will name is yet a question, but it is going to be a three-cornered race in the republican ranks anyway. The democrats face a more serious problem with Aylward in the race, Davies a possibility, Weiss seeking for the honor, Crady, Page, a claimant, and L. O'Connor of Milwaukee ambitious to be known as a possibility, while Schmitz is always ready to offer himself as a sacrifice. However, after the September primaries it will be easier to decide to whom the coveted honor goes, but until then there will be lots of talk.

AMONG WISCONSIN NEWSPAPERS

Time to Get in Line. Antigo is not easily discouraged. Some time ago it voted on adopting the commission form of government. The proposition was defeated. Last week it held another election on the same project and the commission form was adopted by a fine margin. This indicates that the more people become educated on the subject, the more anxious they are to adopt the commission form. It looks as if the old common council plan of city government would soon be relegated to the discard.

Beloit is a rapidly growing city and ought to have some one at its head who will look to and plan for the future. How long will it be content to get along with the antiquated common council system, while its sister cities all over the state take advantage of their opportunity to shake out their shackles and prepare for greater development by adopting the commission form?—Beloit News.

We Rise to Inquire. We believe we read it right. Yes, there it was in big black type—the estimated cost of the Junior prom which was held last night at Madison. $40,000 is what the newspapers say it cost, most of which went for clothes and the balance for decorations, decorations and incidental expenses. Far be it from us to criticize the big annual social affair of the university. We never attended one and don't profess to know anything about them or the service they render but as a casual observer we just rise to suggest that 40,000 real hard simoleans constitute a pretty big chunk of coin for a bunch of youngsters to snoot in down town. In an institution, world famed for its democracy, isn't it a little inconsistent to allow a stunt that merely satisfies the vanity of the few who can afford it, makes a mockery of the ideal for those who do not afford it and arouses envy and dissatisfaction in those who are barred by its pretentiousness?—Racine Call.

The List of the Matter. Janesville elects a new commissioner this spring. It is to be hoped the man selected will be capable for the office and an expert in street construction work.—Janesville Gazette.

This shows that commission-governed cities are waking up to the need of selecting men for commissioners who have had some experience in the very practical kind of duties they will find to do as commissioners. Janesville isn't asking for a political economist or a social leader or brilliant orator, but for a man who knows how to build good streets.—Appleton Post.

Adams to the Rescue. From president indications Professor Adams is likely to be called to Washington at any time to show the administration how to figure out a profit to the farmers under the present tariff law. For instance, it is declared by market experts that the drop $55,000,000; it is also hinted that the beneficiaries of the tariff are the big distillers. Of course they need the money worse than the farmers do; but nevertheless, it would be well before the campaign opens to have a set of figures on hand to show that the farmer is benefited by this situation. If Professor Adams can't do it, it can't be done.—Vausau Record-Herald.

Lyric and Majestic Theaters

For three distinct reasons you should see tonight's program. The first is the beautiful production, coming from Seville, of "The Marriage of Figaro," a vivacious, genuinely entertaining subject following closely the thread of Rossini's famous comedy. The second is the appearance of little Buddy Harris in the Vitaphone "How God Came to Sonny Boy," he is the little fellow who delighted you in "The Little Bugler," Wednesday night. The third is charming little Gladys Huette, who plays the principal part in the Edison comedy "How Bobby Called Her Bluff."

Tomorrow's special program includes another two-reel special Essanay with Francis X. Bushman, entitled "The Girl at the Curtain." Also a three-reel Selig feature, "A Modern Vendetta."

Coming Sunday, Mabel Trunnelle and company of Edison players in "The Silent Death."

One week from tomorrow the third of the Kathlyn series is shown.

RELEASE STEAMERS CAUGHT IN CHICAGO RIVER ICE JAM

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Feb. 13.—The steamer Alabama which was iceblocked for twenty-four hours after attempting to break a path for the Kansas and Arizona, two sister boats, caught in the ice off the mouth of the Chicago river, returned to its anchorage in the river today. A wrecking tug reinforced by a city tug broke up the ice in the harbor and enabled the steamer to return to port. The Kansas and the Arizona followed the course taken by the Alabama.

MOTHER! THE CHILD IS COSTIVE, BILIOUS

Don't hesitate! A laxative is necessary if tongue is coated, breath bad or stomach sour.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful today often saves a sick child tomorrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that it's little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle. Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

FEW MOMENTS! NO INDIGESTION OR SICK, DYSPEPTIC STOMACH—PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN

Digests all food, Absorbs gases, stops fermentation at once—Puts Stomach in order.

Wonder what upset your stomach—what portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. Let your stomach be in a normal state. If your stomach is upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take Pape's Diapepsin, and in five minutes you will wonder what became of the indigestion and distress. Millions of men and women today know that it is necessary to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear. If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is astonishing. Please don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it is so unnecessary.

TRIBUTE TO LINCOLN IS PAID THURSDAY BY SENATOR ROBINSON

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 13.—Tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln was paid Thursday in the name of the southern states by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, speaking at the Lincoln day celebration here.

"The south," said the senator, "reverently joins the north in celebrating this occasion and commissions me to bring a white rose, plucked by the daughter of a Confederate soldier from a garden blooming in the heart of Dixie."

"If Mr. Lincoln were now alive there is not a home in all the south that would not give him joyous welcome. The surviving fragments of the dauntless Lee would combine with the scattered fragments of Grant's legion to form his guard of honor."

"I have said the south unanimously honors the memory of Lincoln because of his generosity and magnanimity in the hour of his desolation. There is yet another greater reason. Emancipation was far more necessary to the section immediately afflicted with slavery than any other. If slavery had continued it would have made the poor white man's condition intolerable. It fostered an aristocracy of land owners, excluded the poor white man from opportunities of profitable labor and barred to him the avenues of progress."

"Throughout his territory, pre-eminently great men have rarely gathered in groups. They have usually appeared as solitary giants, towering above the level of mediocrity, their shadows lengthening with time. "Students have consecrated a small area to the seeds and memories of the great of earth, the master spirits of all ages. How few the figures there? Abraham Lincoln belongs in the front rank of the world's renowned. Centuries of alternating progress and decline, social upheavels, industrial earthquakes and political revolutions may note their dust about him. They cannot entomb him. Man-kind is his debtor. His deeds will endure."

The Business of Leading. The popular leader always takes care to find out which way the crowd wishes to go.

MARRIAGE LICENSE BUSINESS ON GAIN

Despite the new engenic marriage law in Wisconsin, there has been practically no falling off in the number of licenses issued in Rock county for the first month and a half of the year compared with the same period in 1913, which was the banner year in the county's history. To date twenty-one permits to wed have been issued against twenty-eight at this time last year. County Clerk Lea points to these figures as an indication that the new law will have little or no effect in the number of marriages in Rock county. It is probably, however, that the engenic law and the law requiring all couples to wait five days

RETAIL MARKET.

Large quantities of vegetables and fruit that have been shipped into Janesville have suffered slightly from the extreme cold weather, and some of the produce has been frost bitten. This is especially true of summer delicacies imported from sunny states in the south.
Average prices govern the market, there being no decided change during the last two weeks. Today the dealers offered a wide variety of fish from the favorite trout to the Florida tuna. Fresh cod and smelts and whitefish were sold in a few of the markets. Butter is selling from thirty to thirty-two cents, most of the grocers selling it at the lower price.

PREVENT MANY SUICIDES BY STUDYING CAUSES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Cleveland, O., Feb. 12.—"I knew I ought to get my mind off myself, but somehow I couldn't. Then the idea of taking my life occurred to me. At first I tried to put it out of my mind but it was no use. I read of your society and thought perhaps you could help."
Nerve racked, ill and determined to make away with himself, a man 27 years of age made this appeal to Dr. Franklin E. Cutler of the newly organized Cleveland conference for the Prevention of Self-Destruction. It is this type of man, and others—worried or ill unto death—that Dr. Cutler said today the conference was organized to save. Many prominent men including city officials, doctors, psychologists and scientists are members of the organization and will make a study of the causes of suicide. Already nearly one hundred men have applied to the conference for help.

A ladies' quartette, composed of Misses Clark, Ball, Insall, and Chapin, rendered several selections. Toasts were given by Miss Hazel Han, Ruison, Elmer Berbean and Frank Green, after which Rev. I. P. Roach of Madison gave an interesting address.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD
Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it "Hamburger Brust Thee" at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

HOW OLD IS YOUR SOUL?

You know, of course, how old your body is. Every one knows, with more or less exactness, although he or she may not be willing to make the knowledge public.

But how old is your soul?
Is it young in enthusiasm and the joy of living, the thrill of interest in your own life and the lives of others? Is it fresh and alert, or is it dying in the depths of pessimism and indifference?

Listen to this—
"I still feel young. You know it is our souls that make us young or old. If our souls be young, though our bodies be as old as Methuselah, we are young indeed."

It is Cardinal Gibbons, head of the Roman Catholics of the United States, who is talking at the physical age of seventy-nine.

Others before him have told us not to let the sunset of our lives be tinged with the shades of helpless resignation, as to an evil.

If we keep our souls young we may be young—as young as we please. We may retain the outlook on life of the youngest among us instead of that of the helpless, hopeless aged.

We may be as lusty and vigorous in mind and spirit as the young man, though our physical selves be afflicted with the infirmities of age.

It is the age of the soul that counts most.

"We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths; in feelings, not in figures on a dial," says the poet Bailey.

It is sad to note that there are among the young in body some who are old in soul. They have sold their birthright of hope and joyousness and a cheerful outlook on life for a mess of weariness and doubt.

They are to be pitied, not blamed. They need tonics for the soul.

They need uplifting in faith in life and its ultimate good, in belief in humanity and its essential righteousness. They need to be aroused by a trumpet call to look outside of themselves and their own concerns, to view the universe as a whole.

So do the young in soul view the world. It unfolds to them ever newer and more beautiful wonders. It tells them that life is given to us all to be lived in the greatest measure of which we are capable, not be shirked or contented as something to be got through with as soon as possible.

Wake up, your soul!
"Everybody's doing it." Doing what? Reading the want ads.

High and Low.
Naturally the clergyman was annoyed when the waiter asked if the luncheon party would be high church or low church. "What on earth has that to do with you?" he demanded. "A great deal, sir," explained the waiter; "if your friends are high church I must provide more wine; if low church, more wittles."—Cardiff Western Mail.

Lot's Question

By REV. PARLEY E. ZARTMANN, D.D.
Secretary of Extension Department
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Is it not a little one?—Genesis 12:2.

Though Lot lived in the dawn of human history and in a far-away land, he is a modern character and seems like a citizen of our own community, so frequently do we meet men of similar character and conduct. He esteemed silver of more value than a soul, and the variety and excitement of life in Sodom to dwelling in peace and quiet in the tents with Abraham. He is an illustration of the swift descent of the soul into the vortex of sin. He got into Sodom, which was not evil necessarily, but then Sodom got into him, and that is evil always. We know from the record that it was a wicked town, full of sin and abomination, so wicked that even the pleading of righteous Abraham, the friend of God, could not save it; though Lot was saved, yet so as by fire.

Lot's question was asked as he was being led out of the city by the messenger from God. It was a crisis day. The men plead with Lot to bring his family out with him; to his sons-in-law he seemed as one that mocked, so useless was his testimony. The angels constrained Lot to flee with his wife and two daughters. "But he lingered; and the men laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his wife, and upon the hand of his two daughters, Jehovah being merciful unto him; and they brought him forth, and set him without the city. Escape to the mountains, lest thou be consumed." But Lot does not want to go all the way in obedience, and as he comes to Zoar he says, "Behold now, this city is near to flee unto. Is it not a little one? Oh let me escape thither."

How often have we asked Lot's question about our life, when God has given some clear command. Something is under sentence, we know it, but we think it unimportant. Is it not a little one? For example: lack of love, irritability, worldliness, a sharp tongue, falsehood, uncleanness, grieving the Holy Spirit, lack of forgiveness or apology, unconcern about our own souls. You excuse these; you palliate them; you laugh at them; you have them yourself, and encourage those who do them. You say, "Is it not a little one?" And many of your fellow-men are as unconcerned and indifferent as you are.

But God—let me pause to think of him—calls these things sin. He says these things are fit for destruction and this warning to you has been timely, ample and urgent. You make light of sin, but God's just judgment outweighs your selfish opinion prompted by carnal desires. No sin is small in his sight, and he knows the full measure and meaning of it. This little one may be the seed of a vast and vicious brood. Beware of any sin. Fear it, hate it, flee from it. Say "No" to sin. Burn the witchies which seek your destruction. More—it is an awful thing to have any known sin and be determined to keep it.

You ask about your pet sin, as Lot did about Zoar. Yes, God did spare the city, but he does not spare sin. He knows what it is and what it means, toward God and toward men. He knows what it does—robs of peace, shuts the soul out from God, makes cowards and makes tools for Satan, brings helplessness, hopelessness and death. He knows what sin costs—Christ and Calvary, for Christ was manifested to take away sin; is he doing it in you? Can you face these facts and then stand up and say, "Is it not a little one?" You may make a mock of sin now, but what will you say in that day when the Judge will be on the throne?

And we know how little influence, power and happiness people have who cling to their sins and who refuse to obey the command of God to escape to the mountain. This weakness of testimony appears in the home, in the church, and in the community. The world has no use for a sinful member of the church. It finds fault, it cries shame, and it stays away from the church, from Christ and from heaven. Are you responsible for any such? Do you meet complaint, criticism or censure with "Is it not a little one?" God pity you!

These things ought not so to be. They need not be so. "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus." Grace enough for all, and free. Grace for salvation, for keeping, for perfection in the presence of Jesus at the last. "By grace are ye saved."

Do you not see how great and grievous a thing sin is? Do you not want to come into right relations with God? I declare emancipation from that sin, by Jesus Christ, who is able to save unto the uttermost. Don't stay in slavery, but come out into the large place provided by Jesus Christ.

TREASURY OFFICIALS WARN AGAINST HOAX

Promoters Reaping Large Profits By Faking Financial Scheme on Railroad Bonds.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Feb. 13.—A hoax that deserves to rank with Barnum's "Cardiff giant" and Dr. Cook's mental discovery of the North Pole has just called forth a warning from the Treasury Department to creditors investors generally. It concerns a most alluring story of $64,000,000 in railroad bonds, with accrued interest since 1861, supposed to be gathering dust in Uncle Sam's strong box and awaiting to be distributed among the heirs of Charles Durkee, one time senator from Wisconsin, and territorial governor of Utah, who died in 1870. More than ten years after Durkee's death, Leonard C. Blaisdell, his nephew by marriage, conceived the idea that the former senator had at one time bought up an entire bond issue of first mortgage bonds of the Pacific railroad and had them turned over to the United States to guarantee completion of a transcontinental rail line. Col. F. A. Reeve, acting solicitor for the Treasury Department, believes that Blaisdell was merely suffering from some sort of hallucination, but since the time his story has been used to sell "stock" in the visionary claim. Blaisdell has not been heard of in Washington for years and officials here believe he is dead.

To give color to their scheme the promoters at one time brought suit in the Federal courts of Utah, but it was thrown out of court and in sustaining the lower tribunal on an appeal Federal Judge Phillips said: "A syndicate of promoters was formed. They devised the scheme of selling shares of stock in the chances of success. It was represented that if the suit was won the result would be over $200,000,000 for division among the shareholders. These agents accordingly disposed of some shares at the proportion of 50 for $1.00 in money, and when the bait stated they offered the still more alluring temptation of 100 shares for $1 in money, and the evidence shows that they succeeded in drawing from their dupes about $50,000."

For years after this there was nothing more heard of the claim but lately Colonel Reeve has learned that some more 50 to 1 chances are being offered and that one man recently parted with $1,000 to the promoters.

ARRANGE FOR GATHERING OF STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 13.—Disreputable practices by some attorneys and the possible perversion of justice in some of the courts will bring about a big discussion at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Bar association to be held June 24 and 25. President C. P. Bird of Wausau, in announcing the program, declares that he will bring this subject up in his annual address. Chief Justice J. B. Winslow will talk on "Courts of Conciliation." William Riddell, chief justice of Toronto, Canada, will make an address. The association will discuss the constitutional amendments changing the judicial circuits and will probably pass resolutions regarding them.

Boils Biliousness Malaria Constipation

Are You Troubled?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

Perhaps this case may be similar to yours

J. Wesley Tilly (Box 673), Selma, Cal., writes: "Gentlemen:—It gives me much pleasure to be able to send you a testimonial, if by its reaching some sufferer your medicine will do him as much good as it has done for me. At the age of fourteen I was troubled with a great deal with malaria and biliousness, accompanied with the most sort of large boils. I was persuaded by my parents, who have always been strong believers in Dr. Pierce's remedies, to try the Golden Medical Discovery. I took one bottle and the boils all disappeared, but I did not stop at one bottle, I took three and the malaria all left me and I have had no more boils to this day, thanks to the 'Golden Medical Discovery' for my relief."

"Following an operation for appendicitis two years ago I was troubled very much with constipation and I have been trying Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pills and they have cured me of the troublesome gas and have aided me in conquering the whole trouble. Thank you for the Pills and for the advice I have obtained from 'The People's Common Sense Medical Advice.' Send only 50 cents for this 100 page book."

He got his fifty one fine day. And then he found out that He never could be happy quite, Without one hundred flat.

He made some wise deals after that And gathered in a million. But was he happy? No, indeed, He had to save a billion.

And it is safe to say that if He really got his billion, Of age could find him fighting to Accumulate a trillion.

In the Wake of the News.

John Lind has broken his silence at last. When asked for a statement by a reporter the other day he said that the weather in Mexico is excellent for this season of the year. George Ade wants to be United States senator. Well, it certainly requires a strong sense of humor to get any enjoyment out of a job of that kind. Chicago demands milk in the original package, but it is going to be some trouble for the dairy farmer to

Now that the Wisconsin Eugenics law has been declared unconstitutional, a man can get married no matter what kind of a constitution he has got.

The parcel post limit will be extended to 100 pounds, but a good many persons will not be satisfied until they can ship a piano that way.

Greeley's Religion.

Horace Greeley was a Universalist in religion and was a regular attendant at the "Church of the Divine Paternity," of which the famous Dr. E. H. Chapin was minister. Greeley died in 1872, at the age of sixty-one, broken-hearted over his wife's death and his political discomfiture.

Land of Indolence.

The are is no doubt that the climate of Mexico inclines to both physical and moral indolence, and exercise of either body or mind such as people indulge in in the United States or Europe seems impossible there. The old fashioned Mexican of culture was quite content if his daughters went to church constantly, embroidered, sang a little and painted a little.

Doctor or Undertaker.

Upon meeting a rather sour-faced woman in the car the other day, the pleasant faced young man said cheerily: "Good morning! How are you today?" "Not so well," was the reply. "I have rheumatism and an awful cold, my right arm is dreadfully swollen, and there's a rash—" but the young man fled, probably to get an ambulance.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE MEANING OF ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.
I HAVE often wondered what was the exact origin of our celebration of St. Valentine's day, what St. Valentine's connection with it was, and magazines and newspapers about this time of year is always so vague and unsatisfactory.

This year, for your sake and mine, I took the radical step of looking into the matter, and, my Valentine to you, let me tell you a few things about Valentine's Day.

In the first place, the reason no one ever tells us clearly about the origin of the celebration and why it is called St. Valentine's Day is that no one knows.

There are two Valentines for whom this honor has been claimed. The first is Saint Valentine, a pope of the early church. He was a most holy and austere man and was cast into jail for his faith during the Claudian persecutions. While he was there he converted the jailer's daughter of blindness; subsequently he was beaten with clubs, then beheaded.

The other Valentine was a bishop. The chief thing known about him was that he choked to death on a fish bone. For some reason people afflicted with epilepsy pray to him.

Any possible reason why either one of these men should be chosen for the patron saint of lovers no one has been able to find out.

The celebration itself, probably comes down to us from the old Roman times, for in the month of February festivals were held to Juno and Pan, and one of the customs was for the boys to draw the names of the girls from a bowl, just as the young folks of today sometimes do at their parties.

The Christian fathers disapproved of this custom and tried to induce the young men to draw the names of saints instead. The idea was that each connection with this custom, it is supposed that Saint Valentine somehow got mixed up with the day which now bears his name.

It is that it is the day on which birds choose their mates. Hence the drawing of names by the young men.

According to an old English custom the man or maid who greeted a member of the opposite sex by being the first to say, "Good morning, 'tis St. Valentine's Day," could claim a gift.

Another reason was that the first woman seen by a man on that day—vice versa—was to be his Valentine or sweetheart.

Of course, the immortal Peppy has been interested in little side lights to contribute. Valentine givers will be interested to know that the middle class gentleman gave his Valentine a dozen pairs of gloves and a pair of silk stockings. Quite evidently the cost of living could not have been what it is now.

Again, he tells us how Will Bowyer came to be his wife's Valentine. "She having (at which I made good sport to myself) held her hands all the morning, that she might not see the painter, that were at work gilding my chimney piece and pictures in my dining room."

Doesn't that bring a hundred years ago close to us?

one, is of mauve chiffon over rose with a band of black velvet about her throat and no sleeves at all. Mother's dress of baby blue is as diaphanous and scant of skirts as Daughter's pink chiffon and if this keeps on, no doubt great-grandma will be ordering a yellow crepe for chine for her next coming out party.

There is much to be said for this fashion of perpetual youth. When a woman's heart is young even though her years number three score and ten there is no need for her to deck herself in the rusty garments of senility. On the other hand the great danger of the present mode, is a tendency to go far to the other extreme and nothing is sadder than when she refuses to accent her years gracefully and artistically. If she is wise, however, the young middle aged woman selects her raincoat judiciously in tones of soft grey, lavender, purple, golden brown, taupe, saffron, blue, old rose and creamy white and remembers that black is for the young woman alone.

Moleskin is a becoming fur for all ages and silver tipped fox as attractive for fifty as fifteen. Let her pay attention to her figure and always be well-corseted.

One may easily keep ahead of Father Time in the tripping measure of the trot and tango and a marseuse in time saves nine wrinkles.

One of the newest fads is the wearing of pearl dog collars not merely in the evening but for afternoon as well. This is a blessing for the woman whose only betrayal of age is about the throat, nor will she be suspected of wearing it for that reason since sweet and twenty is also covering up her firm young throat in like manner.

Another good thing for the Indian summer charmer is the present craze for small and close fitting hats, for none but the brave and extremely young should dare the large chaparral.

It is well to bear in mind that you've got to feel young as well as dress young. If you would look young, so throw your knitting needles and your spools into the discard, Granny, join a tango class and get a French dressmaker and Swedish masseuse.

Wrinkles aren't being worn this season and a sparkle in your eye is worth two crowfeet in the corner.

Heart and Home Problems

Friend Mrs. Thompson: (1) On my dining table there are marks where I have set hot dishes. I tried to be careful, but they show just the same.

Please tell me something to remove them.
(2) I expect a load of young people here at my home. What would be nice to serve for lunch and not cost very much?

Also, wear hats that come down over your face pretty well.
(2) If you want them to think you cheap, keep on kissing them.
(3) Hockey is too rough a game or girls to play it with the boys.
(4) You are both too young to be engaged. By the time you are old enough to marry you will like somebody very different and you will be ashamed of having carried on with this fellow. He will feel the same toward you.
(5) No.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is a girl of fourteen too young to go with boys?
(2) Is it wrong to kiss a boy good night when he brings you home from a party?
(3) A boy I like very well is going away. How can I keep him from going?

BLUE EYES.
(1) Not, if she considers them merely as friends, and doesn't treat them as lovers.
(2) I don't think it is right, my dear. A great many boys and girls do this to get a kiss and think it is all right, but it always cheapens a girl and a boy is always suspicious of a girl who can be kissed, unless he is engaged to marry her—and you are too young to think of being engaged.

(3) You can't keep him. Why should you try. It may be best for him to go. Besides, there are plenty of other boys.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Will you please give me a remedy for itching scalp?
(2) Please tell me a pretty way for a lady of forty-five to do her hair.

(1) After washing the hair and cleaning brush and combs thoroughly, dip brush in coal oil and brush the hair thoroughly with this. Do this once or twice a week (hair need not be washed each time). Be careful not to get near eye when you use the coal oil.
(2) A low, wavy pompadour with the hair drawn back partly covering the ears into a loose knot at the back of the head is becoming to almost anybody. Adjust the back hair at the most becoming point. It should not be worn very low at your age. Hold the hair in place with combs. If a part is becoming to you, try it in the middle or at the side.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have a very large nose. Is there any way in which I can reduce it?
(2) When boys friends take me home is it proper for me to kiss them good night?

(3) Is it proper for girls to play hockey with boy friends at a public skating rink?
(4) I am fifteen years old and am engaged to a young man who is nineteen. Am I too young?
(5) Is it proper for me to sit on this young man's lap when he calls on me?

STALKY.
(1) You cannot make a large nose smaller. In doing your hair make it very fluffy about your face and the nose will not be noticed so much.

Rub the bottom of a dish that must be used in the fire with lard and the smut will be easily wiped off.

A delightful invalid drink is made by blending a half cup of grape juice with a cup and a half of strong lemonade.

If the cake flavoring has been forgotten, sprinkle a little over it as it is in the pan before baking.

Figs and dates with a few raisins make a delicious combination with chopped apples for a salad.

Four to six drops of either camphor or turpentine dropped on loaf sugar will relieve a cold if taken in the beginning.

Instead of sewing hangers on towels for the kitchen, make button holes in the corners and they will last as long as the towels.

The flavor of a cup of cocoa is improved if a few drops of vanilla are added to it.

A good floor cleaner is turpentine rubbed into the hard wood floor and followed by a cloth wet with linseed oil.

When a kettle has food burned on never scrape it, but put soda and water to the dish and boil slowly until the burned mixture is softened and easily removed.

In extreme cases of insomnia a hot water bag at the feet and an ice bag at the back of the head will afford quick relief.

ENGLISH WOMEN IN BATTLE ARRAY TO FIGHT FOR THEIR HUSBANDS' CAUSES

A number of prominent Englishwomen, the wives of parliament members, are taking a big interest in politics, and this coming spring promise to get into battle array and fight for their husbands' causes. Among them are Mrs. Waldorf Astor, an American woman; Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, also an American and formerly Miss Mary Burns of New York; and the Countess of Crewe. Mrs. Harcourt is said to be far and away the most active and ambitious of the trio.

EVERYDAY TALKS FOR EVERYDAY PEOPLE

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

Is the average home diet monotonous? Do we have too many meals that the menus read—bread, butter, potatoes, and pie or cake as a top off? This is a starchy meal and it served right along colorless people will be the rule in that family. The work they will be able to do, whether mental or manual will be colorless also, because the absence of meats or meat's equivalents will soon show in a family fed on not a well balanced ration.

Whether can do her family no greater wrong than to sew the seed of ill health through insufficient nourishment. The ideally balanced meal is the one where one protein, one or two starches, one bulky food, one mineral food, one fat besides butter, one sweet and one liquid besides water is served. Of course the amount to be consumed is dictated by individual appetite.

No one article of food contains all the necessary elements of nourishment in proper proportion so the mixed diet is used to obtain the near correct meal. Some foods are too rich in protein; all animal foods are; while others have an excess of carbohydrate.

The combinations such as bread and cheese, beans and bacon, potatoes and beef, all go to show how the surplus of carbohydrate or fat in the first article is made up for by the excess of protein in the second. A similar balance is struck in making puddings when milk and eggs that are rich in protein are mixed with rice or bread, which contain a surplus of carbohydrate.

The use of white sauce with fish is another example. Children are least capable of bearing the need of proper food. Oat meal, milk, peas, beans, are not outside the average man's income, neither is rice, dried apricots and peaches. All these are first aids to a growing child and when properly cooked go far toward making a strong, healthy child. As health is a child's brightest gem, on parents to see that they have it and are given the right kind of food to enable them to keep it.

To learn how to buy and what to buy and when to buy it may seem a simple task, but in reality it is a work that will take time and conscientious effort on the part of every mother in the land that must live on a limited income. As this class includes the larger per cent of the women of our country, the job of homemaker and housekeeper is by no means a small or unimportant one. How are you filling this position?

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Often when boiling eggs the white comes through the shell through the taste of the egg through its appearance. This may be prevented if a teaspoonful of salt is put into the water before boiling.

To clean black chip hats, rubbing with sweet oil is an excellent way, but be careful not to use too much, and then rub with a piece of black velvet till all the oil is removed.

When frying oysters always add a little baking powder to the flour in which they are rolled. This increases the size of the oysters very much.

A light sprinkling of powdered cinnamon just before serving improves the flavor of a cup of cocoa.

THE TABLE.

Veal Cutlets—Wipe the cutlets with a damp cloth, dip them first in beaten egg, then in cracker dust, and set in a cold place for an hour. Fry in drippings to a rich brown. Cook slowly that they may be thoroughly done. Lay for a moment on brown paper to drain free of grease, and put on a hot platter. Serve with tomato sauce.

Gingerbread—Mix together a half cupful of brown sugar and New Orleans molasses and stir in a tablespoonful of melted butter, a teaspoonful of ground ginger and a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Set the bowl containing these ingredients at the side of the range until the contents are warm; then beat from the range and beat with an egg.

Pea Pancakes—Open a can of green peas several hours before you wish to use them, drain in a colander and cover with cold water until you are ready to cook them. Boil tender in water slightly salted, drain and wring hot rub through a colander or vegetable press. Work in a teaspoonful of butter, with pepper and salt to taste. Stir for a minute and let the paste get cold. Beat two eggs light and add to the cold paste, alternately with a cupful of milk. Sift half a teaspoonful of baking powder twice with four tablespoonfuls of flour and stir into the mixture. Drop upon a griddle and fry as you would griddle cakes. Eat while hot, as a vegetable. Peas left over from yesterday are nice made up this way.

STOMACH TROUBLES

Increasing. A Simple Remedy.

It has been said the body is like a machine and digestion and elimination of food are the two great factors to health.

If the digestive organs are weak, the stomach overtaxed, waste matter accumulates in the system—the liver gets sluggish and the blood becomes thin and devitalized.

We want to ask every person in this vicinity who is troubled with indigestion, or a weak, worn-out stomach to try our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol.

We know it will strengthen and tone up the weakened, tired and overtaxed nerves of the digestive organs, create a hearty appetite, and replace weakness with strength.

We just heard of a case of a man in Portland, Me., who suffered from a bad stomach trouble for years, and had become so weak he could hardly walk—who was built up by Vinol so he could eat heartily without the slightest distress.

Try a bottle of Vinol and if it fails to help you we will give back your money. Smith Drug Co., Druggists, Jansville, Wis.

"And how will you be so good as to direct me to the Post-road?"
He scratched his head. "This is mighty queer, the whole business," he declared, assailed by doubts. "Suppose you are not Mrs. Wrاندall, but the other one. What then?"

As if in answer to his question, the man Morley opened his blue eyes and tried to get to his feet.

"What—what are we doing here, Miss Wrاندall? What's up?"

"Stay where you are, Steve," said the other. "It's all right." Then he went forth and pointed the way to her. "It's a long way to Columbus Circle," he said. "I don't envy you the trip. Keep straight ahead after you hit the Post-road." He stood there listening until the whirr of the motor was lost in the distance. "She'll never make it," he said to himself. "It's more than a strong man could do on roads like these. She must be crazy."

Coming to the Post-road, she increased the speed of the car, with the sharp wind behind her, her eyes intent on the white stretch that leaped up in front of the lamps like a blank wall beyond which there was nothing but dense oblivion. But for the fact that she knew that this road ran straight and unobstructed into the outskirts of New York, she might have lost courage and decision. The natural confidence of an experienced driver was hers. She had the daring of one who has never met with an accident, and who trusts to the instincts rather than to an actual understanding of conditions. With her, it was not a question of her own capacity and strength, but a belief in the fidelity of the engine that carried her forward. It had not occurred to her that the task of guiding the unbroken road was thing through the unbroken road was something beyond her powers of endurance. She often had driven it a hundred miles and more without resting, or without losing zest in the enterprise; then why should she fear the small matter of 30 miles, even under the most trying of conditions?

Sharply there came to her mind the question: was she the only one abroad in this black little world? What of the other woman? The one who was being hunted? Where was she? And what of the ghost at her heels?

The car bounded over a railroad crossing. She recalled the directions given by the man at the station and hastily applied the brake. There was another and more dangerous crossing a hundred yards ahead. She had been warned particularly to take it carefully, as there was a sharp curve in the road beyond.

Suddenly she jammed down the emergency brake, a startled exclamation falling from her lips. Not 20 feet ahead, in the middle of the road and directly in line with the light of the lamps, stood a black, motionless figure—the figure of a woman whose head was lowered and whose arms hung limply at her sides.

The woman in the car bent forward over the wheel, staring hard. Many seconds passed. At last the formless object in the roadway lifted her face and looked vacantly into the glare of the lamps. Her eyes were wide-open, her face a ghastly white.

"God in heaven!" struggled from the stiffening lips of Sara Wrاندall. Her fingers tightened on the wheel.

She knew. This was the woman! The long brown ulster; the limp, fluttering veil? "A woman about your size and figure," the sheriff had said. The figure advanced and then moved a few steps forward. Blinded by the lights, she bent her head and shielded her eyes with her hand the better to glimpse the occupant of the car.

"Are you looking for me?" she cried out shrilly, at the same time spreading her arms as if in surrender. It was almost a wail.

Mrs. Wrاندall caught her breath. Her heart began to beat once more. "Who are you? What do you want?" she cried out, without knowing what she said.

The girl started. She had not expected to hear the voice of a woman. She staggered to the side of the road, out of the line of light.

"I beg your pardon," she cried—"it was like a wall of disappointment—I am sorry to have stopped you."

"Come here," commanded the other, still staring.

The unsteady figure advanced. Halting beside the car, she leaned across the spare tires and gazed into the eyes of the driver. Their faces were not more than a foot apart, their eyes were narrowed in intense scrutiny.

"What do you want?" repeated Mrs.

Wrاندall. She made no effort to analyze it, nor to account for it. Why should she pity the slayer of her husband? It was a question unasked, unconsidered. Afterwards she was to recall this hour and its strange impulse, and to realize that it was not pity, but mercy that moved her to do the extraordinary thing that followed.

Trembling all over, her teeth chattering, her breath coming in short little moans, the girl struggled up beside her and fell back in the seat. Without a word, Sara Wrاندall drew the great buffalo robe over her and tucked it in about her feet and legs far up about her body, which had slumped down in the seat.

"You are very, very good," chattered the girl, almost inaudibly. "I shall never forget—"

She did not complete the sentence, but sat upright and fixed her gaze on her companion's face. "You—you are not doing this just to turn me over to the police? They must be searching for me. You are not going to give me up to them, are you? There will be a reward!"

"There is no reward," said Sara Wrاندall sharply. "I do not mean to give you up. I am simply giving you a chance to get away. I have always felt sorry for the fox when the time for the kill drew near. That's the way I feel."

"Oh, thank you! Thank you! But what am I saying? Why should I permit you to do this for me? I mean to go back there and have it over with. I know I can't escape. It will have to come, it is bound to come. Why put it off? Let them take me, let them do what they will with me, I—"

"Hush! We'll see. First of all, understand me: I shall not turn you over to the police. I will give you the chance. I will help you. I can do no more than that."

"But why should you help me? I—I—oh, I can't let you do it! You do not understand. I have—committed a—terrible—"

She broke off with a groan.

"I understand," said the other, something like grimace in her level tones. "I have been tempted more than once myself." The enigmatic remark made no impression on the listener.

"I wonder how long ago it was that it all happened," muttered the girl, as if to herself. "It seems ages—oh, such ages."

"Where have you been hiding since last night?" asked Mrs. Wrاندall, throwing in the clutch. The car started forward with a jerk, kicking up the snow behind it.

"Was it only last night? Oh, I've been—"

The thought of her sufferings from exposure and dread was too much for the wretched creature. She broke out in a soft wail.

"You've been out in all this weather?" demanded the other.

"I lost my way. In the hills back there. I don't know where I was."

"Had you no place of shelter?"

"Where could I seek shelter? I spent the day in the cellar of a farmer's house. He didn't know I was there. I have had no food."

"Why did you kill that man?"

"There was nothing left for me to do but that."

"And why did you rob him?"

"Ah, I had ample time to think of all that. You may tell the officers that."

"You may tell the officers that."

will find everything hidden in that farmhouse cellar. God knows I do not want them. I am not a thief. I'm not so bad as that."

Mrs. Wrاندall marveled. "Not so bad as that!" And she was a murderer, a wanton!

"You are hungry. You must be famished."

"No, I am not hungry. I have not thought of food." She said it in such a way that the other knew what her whole mind had been given over to since the night before.

A fresh impulse seized her. "You shall have food and a place where you can sleep—and rest," she said. "Now please don't say anything more. I do not want to know too much. The least you say tonight, the better for—for both of us."

With that she devoted all of her attention to the car, increasing the speed considerably. Far ahead she could see twinkling, will-o'-the-wisp lights, the first signs of thickly populated districts. They were still eight or ten miles from the outskirts of the city and the way was arduous. She was conscious of a sudden feeling of fatigue. The chill of the night seemed to have made itself felt with abrupt.

BABY'S FACE ONE SORE WITH ECZEMA

Cried for Hours, Could Not Sleep. Resinol Brought Rest and Cure.

Reading, Pa.—My baby girl had eczema for over six months. It was painful and itching, she could not sleep day or night, she would scratch till blood and water would run down her neck. Then it burned her so she cried for hours at a time. The right side of her face was one sore and scab.

"I got the samples of Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment on a Saturday morning, and put them on, and put them on again in the afternoon and in the evening before I put her to bed, and she went to sleep and slept till next morning. I thought I was in heaven the first night, and by Monday the eczema was dried up so that all the scabs fell off. Resinol Soap and Ointment cured my baby." (Signed) Mrs. Wm. M. Fletcher, 544 So. 17th St., Aug. 21, 1912.

If you or any of your little ones are suffering from eczema, rash, tetter, ringworm, or other itching, burning skin eruption, there is only one better proof of the value of Resinol. That is, try it yourself and see! You can get samples free by writing to Dept. 18-M, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Resinol stops itching instantly. Prescribed by doctors for 18 years, sold by every druggist.

ST. VALENTINE'S A Christianized Roman Feast

A Valentine depicting the Days of the Empire

A Love Missive

FROM time immemorial people have sought to find a reason other than custom for the sending of love missives on Saint Valentine's Day. First they studied the lives of the men of the ancient days who bore the name of Valentine and found nothing which can connect them with the sentimental celebration of the day which bears their name. There was Saint Valentine, a bishop or Pope of Rome, who stood steadfast to his faith during the persecution of the Christians by the Emperor Claudius, and on account of his fidelity to his religion was cast into jail where according to the legend he cured the keeper's daughter of blindness. When the miracle was made known to the authorities they ordered him to be beaten with clubs and afterwards beheaded. His bones are preserved in the Church of Saint Praxedes in Rome. Near this church is a gate named in his honor. There is no record of his having written love songs or of his ever having been in love, and surely there was nothing sentimental about his death.

There was another prominent figure in history by the name of Valentine who had even less to do with sentiment, for he was a bishop of the Church and met an untimely end by being choked to death by a fish bone. Like the other Valentine he performed a miracle, by healing a son of Craton, the rhetorician, of epilepsy. In Italy and Germany they still pray to him when a person is suffering from this disease. The records of this Valentine's life unfold no romance or poems of love or affairs of the heart. Surely he was not the patron saint of lovers nor was the other pious Valentine who went to his death for refusing to renounce his faith.

Originated With the Roman Lupercalia. But after all, Valentine Day customs originated many years before these good men lived. Francis Douce, the noted antiquarian, has traced it back to the days of ancient Rome, and has practically proven that it is merely the Roman feast of the Lupercalia Christianized. This Roman holiday was kept in honor of Pan and Juno, and is sometimes known as Juno Februata. There were merry doings on that day, especially with the young people. Among the other ceremonies of the feast it was customary to put the names of young women into a box from which they were drawn by young men as chance directed. Each then became the partner of the man who drew her name for the feast. As time went on the revels of the Lupercalia became so immoral that the Church decided that this particular custom would have to be changed, so the mandate went forth that the name of a saint should be written upon the slips instead of those of living women and each young man who drew the name was to regard this saint as his patron for the coming year, and for several years this was done. But romantic youth was not long satisfied to imitate these holy fathers and ballot for a saintly partner in heaven. He longed for something consisting of flesh and blood here on earth, such as a beautiful girl. So, he went back to something like the pagan custom and Saint Valentine's Day then became the name of the feast, and although Christianized it still retains a modified form of the Lupercalia.

Quaker Custom of Challenge. Then came the custom of challenging one's valentine, and this was done by girls as well as men. Finally it became no uncommon thing for a girl to walk up to a man who was a perfect stranger to her and say, "Good morning—'tis Saint Valentine's Day!" It then became the duty of the man so challenged to send the young woman a present. This was carried to such extremes that it became a regular hold-up game. It was practiced only by the lower classes for a time and happily the custom died out altogether a century or more ago. In Kent, England, the girls burn holly on Saint Valentine's Day and their sweethearts throw ivy on the fire as a sign that they, too, are ready to sacrifice for love. In some parts of Holland the girls and boys go about the streets decorated with "true lovers' knots" and those who wear the same colors are supposed to be lovers. As early as the eighteenth century the fancy valentine came into use. At that time it was written on paper adorned with a gilt Cupid which had been carefully pasted on. The poetry was what is termed today of the mushy variety. The favorite formula announced in terms still held sacred to Saint Valentine's Day because the rose is red and the violet blue therefore the recipient is as sweet as sugar. These love laden missives were sent by messenger. Then came a reduction in postage, and printed valentines began to appear—hideous looking affairs showing grotesquely attired men and women sitting side by side while Cupid hovered over their heads. The God of Love was usually a very fat, pink, ill-shaped cherub, who carried a huge bow and a quiver of golden arrows. He was always shown in the act of shooting an arrow at the couple below him. The lace paper valentine, with embossed pictures of love scenes hidden amid layers of lace paper was the next fashion, and some of these were really very pretty. These were followed by the hand painted satin card, which was, of course, more expensive than the lace paper. The verses, however, were the same, for since the days of the Lupercalia the old, old story of "two lives with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one" has not changed except that each year the lover seems to lavish more gifts upon his sweetheart. About the middle of the nineteenth century the manufacture of valentines became a business, and today several thousand people are employed in the industry. The work particularly appeals to invalids and cripples and requires no great strength. A few years ago the valentine post card made its appearance and at present threatens to crowd out many of the prettier and finer love tokens. One of the first of these cards was two hands clasped backed up by a bunch of roses. Hundreds of these were sold, and the next year cards of every variety made their appearance, such as cards postmarked "Loveville" with postage of two kisses. Another shows a maiden sitting by a stream in which Cupid is swimming. The maiden is removing her shoes making ready to follow the little God of Love in the Saint Valentine Lake. Another card shows a red heart with a golden slipper attached, and under it are the words:

"To my Valentine—
Will you be my Cinderella?"

Flowers and Candy. Flowers, too, are sent as valentines—violets, lilacs of the valley and roses being the particular favorites, as in the language of flowers these have a sentimental meaning. Candy in heart-shaped boxes has long been in vogue. This year the Dolly Madison box is to be the fashion. The top is a delicate faced doll dressed in crepe paper in the style of the days of Dolly Madison. Beneath is a box which can be filled with bonbons. A love missive is usually tied to the wrist of the doll. One of the very newest things is a ring box hidden in a bouquet of violets with a sweet-faced doll in the center. To all appearances this is a corsage bouquet. In the back of the bouquet is a small velvet-lined box just large enough for a ring. The whole make-up of this valentine is especially pretty and in most cases expensive. Each year brings out new ideas and new ways for the lover to show admiration for his sweetheart, and although Saint Valentine's Day may be a pagan feast it is none the less a popular one with the young people of the twentieth century.

HARD TIMES

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

HARD TIMES are regular visitors in every country—the kind of visitors who outwear their welcome before they have rung the door bell.

Hard times may be caused by bad crops, or decayed industries, or war, or a government which is solid timber above the collar. Hard times may also be a species of sobering up. After a country has become so prosperous that people spend billions of dollars for stocks and bonds printed by eminent promoters on fast color presses and backed by rainbows and east wind, hard times usually come along as a sort of financial bromesseller. The United States has hard times about once every twenty years, this being the only precedent followed with any devotion in this country.

No one knows why we have hard times except perhaps a few great financiers, who will not tell for fear the grand jury might find out. Of late we have had hard times for the same reason that an audience gets up at the cry of "fire" and tries to pass unanimously through a small door at the same moment. We have had hard times because one pessimist whispers, another wags his head, a third sighs heavily, a fourth declares that he will curtail his production next year, a fifth says it is a shame for the party in power, which isn't his, to plunge the country into such headlines to the fact that railroads are laying off men, and a seventh tells all comers that his bank cannot lend any more money and will sit henceforth on what it has like a devoted Plymouth Rock hen trying to hatch chickens out of door knobs. Soon after this, hard times arrives with baggage for an extensive stay, and the bread line becomes almost as long as the line in front of the theatre when the ex-mistress of an ex-king is billed to exhibit.

Last year the crops of this country were worth more than the crops of any other year in history, and foreign nations bought more boatloads of American goods than ever before. Yet a large number of people are spending most of their time exhorting the cautions to sell all they have for gold and to bury the gold back of the woodshed. From which it might almost be concluded that hard times are caused chiefly by soft-heads.

Disillusioned. After a woman has been trotting in double harness for a few years it makes her fretful every time she sees a newly married couple making love
